TRANSHIELD SECURES $50 MILLION CONTRACT WITH DEFENSE LOGISTICS AGENCY FOR STORAGE COVER SOLUTIONS

Elkhart, IN – Transshield, a leader in protective cover solutions, has been selected as one of three awardees of a five-year, $50 million contract by the Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) to provide storage cover solutions for various DLA distribution centers, warehouses, and operations, along with other Department of Defense (DOD) sites. The contract aims to protect equipment from deterioration, improve logistics support, and reduce maintenance costs through cutting-edge technology and custom storage solutions.

DLA's mission involves managing a global logistics network, with over 34 distribution centers handling a $105 billion inventory. The contract will help DLA improve equipment readiness and operational efficiency by integrating protective covers across these sites. Transshield will provide a range of services, including custom design of the protective covers, installation guidance and training, and periodic inspection services as needed.

"We are honored to partner with DLA to enhance their storage and logistics capabilities," said Jim Glick, President of Transshield. "This contract underscores our commitment to the military market and delivering solutions that protect the equipment assets our warfighters need to be effective."
